County Agent's Notes

by John Smith

JUNE-DAIRY MONTH

June Dairy Month began in 1937 and has continued to be the time when we celebrate the dairy farmer, the milk processors and the entire dairy industry. The dairy industry plays a major role in the agricultural economy of our state. The value of milk produced in the state last year amounted to over $120 million.

There are 75 farms engaged in the processing and distributing of milk and milk products with over 1,800 people employed. These farms have an annual payroll of almost $23 million. It is estimated the dairy industry generates over $300 million of economics in our state.

There are a little under 1,000 Grade A dairy farmers in the state. These farmers produced 645 million pounds of milk last year. The number of milk cows in the state averaged 97 thousand with an annual production of 8,711 pounds of milk per cow; or a little over 1,000 gallons.

The dairy industry in the state has undergone a drastic change in the past few years. The large majority of dairy farmers now produce Grade A milk with an average investment of about $5,000 per cow.

The uniqueness of the dairy industry deserves some special consideration. Farmers who produce milk for market must milk their cows at least twice each day. Therefore, the typical day finds the dairy farmer at the barn many hours before daylight and his day ends after dark.

Milk not handled properly is an ideal source for bacterial growth. As a result, milk must be refrigerated at the farm, and this refrigeration must be maintained until ultimate consumption.

Through the biological characteristics of milk production, farmers cannot adjust their supply to meet short-run demand requirements in the marketplace. Rather through skilled management, the dairy farmer can only adjust production in the long run. So the time lag in the production process adds to the uniqueness of the industry.

Milk and milk products continue to be a good buy for consumers. In 1980, the minutes of work required to purchase a half-gallon of milk was 8.7—down from the 10.3 minutes required ten years ago.

Like the dairy farmer, the number of milk plants in the state and throughout the United States has declined. In a decade, Grade A milk plants in this state have declined over 50 percent to the present number of fifteen. Plants that process manufacturing milk have declined to six.

While there have been some declines in the dairy industry, in recent years dairy farmers and milk processors have adjusted and thereby increased their efficiency of operation. Through increased output of milk per cow and through added volume in processing, the industry has provided consumers with sufficient milk and milk products at a lower cost per unit. In doing so, they have also generated economic activity that makes them a major contributor to the overall economy of the State of Mississippi.

CUCUMBERS ON MELONS? Gardening brings all sorts of new experiences, and one of these is the possibility of muskmelons that taste like cucumbers.

If you are among the gardeners who do get melons that taste like cucumbers, don't blame it on cross-pollination between the crops. In fact, it is impossible for these two plants to cross pollinate.

What really happens is that the off-flavor is caused either by cool temperatures, high moisture, low soil fertility or acid soil.

It's easy to attribute the taste to the cucumbers, since that's what the melons taste like.

Next time around, feel free to plant melons and cucumbers, since that's what the melons taste like.

Next time around, feel free to plant melons and cucumbers near each other without fear of cross pollination.

BIG CROP, LOW COST

Economic conditions being as they are, it's especially important for farmers to use practices that will produce a bumper crop at the least cost.

This means getting crops off to a good start by using a complete weed control program to reach the best yield potential.

It may be tempting to cut fertilizer rates. But don't do that unless your soil test recommends it.

Contact our office for more information on getting the most from crop inputs in lean economic times.

THREE-WHEELERS

Three-wheel recreational vehicles are a common sight on many of our farms. But these vehicles can be dangerous if they aren't operated properly.

Cases of brain damage and fatal head injuries have been reported in three-wheeler accidents. Using a helmet can prevent these injuries.

Children should receive proper instruction and supervision before being allowed to ride three-wheel vehicles. It's also important to remember that three-wheelers are meant for drivers only—no riders.

If you have a three-wheel vehicle, be sure to follow safety precautions to prevent a possible tragedy on your farm.

HGH CARES

These are facts about your community hospital, Hancock General Hospital:

Did you know that Hancock General Hospital is now a 'full service institution'?

While you have long enjoyed the medical excellence provided by HGH, you may not realize that HGH is not limited to the care of one's physical well-being only.

Realizing that your needs during hospital care often reach beyond those of a medical nature, the HGH administration has provided care for your emotional and spiritual needs as well.

One example of this concern for the 'total' person is the newly-developed HGH Chaplaincy Program. Under the oversight of administrator, Phil Langston, and social worker, Marjorie Musick, this program is availing itself to the spiritual needs of hundreds who pass through the doors of HGH every month.

The Chaplaincy Program is made up of ministers, priests, and religious leaders from practically every religious body in the Bay-Waveland community. Each day of the week, one of these ministers is assigned to be 'chaplain of the day' and remains on call 24 hours should any need arise. He may even greet you during the afternoon as he makes his rounds and pray with you, if you desire.

Yes, HGH is made up of all kinds of people: doctors, nurses, social workers, administrative personnel and even chaplains. WHY? Because we care!

Watch this space for continuing information concerning your community hospital, the Hancock General Hospital.

We care about you!

ENERGY ANSWERS

from the Mississippi Extension Energy Center

Q. What's the balance point temperature for savings on air-conditioning?

A. For every degree above 78 degrees Fahrenheit that you set your cooling system, you pay seven percent less on your electricity bill.

For every degree under 78 degrees, you pay seven percent more.

As an example, if you set your air-conditioning system at 80 degrees, you'll save 14 percent over the cost of operating it at 78 degrees. If you set your air-conditioner on 72 degrees, you'll pay 42 percent more than you would for a 78-degree setting.

Q. This year we're finally going to get a ceiling fan to help us get through the summer. What do we need to know about them?

A. You should expect a ceiling fan to move air at about 200 feet per minute—about 2.3 miles per hour. Depending on the size of the room you want to put it in, you may achieve this rate of air movement with a 36 inch, a 48 inch, or a 60 inch fan or with more than one fan.

The reason you want the 2.3 mile-per-hour breeze is that when you're around one, you feel seven to ten degrees cooler than you do in still air. Now that fans have become so popular again, there are lots of choices you have to make. Generally speaking, you may not need more than three speeds. Slow will stir the air. Medium and fast will cool you. (Fast will blow loose papers off nearby tables, so be prepared.)

If you have an old house with high ceilings or a new house with a two-story opening or a cathedral ceiling, you'll be able to use a reverse switch on your fan to help redistribute heated air at the top of your house in winter.

When the fan runs on reverse, it sucks air up from below and redistributes it around the room, pushing the hot air down from the ceiling toward the floor. The regular setting pulls the top layer of air down through the fan and pushes it across the floor. You feel more air movement on this setting—which is what you want in the summer but not what you want in the winter.

By using a ceiling fan to help circulate air, you can save a little money, too. You can set your cooling thermostat higher in summer and still feel cool and you can set your heating lower in the winter and still feel warm.

You should also consider the reputation of the person you're buying the fan from, and look for the best warranty you can find. If you should have problems with the fan, you'll need to know who is responsible for replacing parts and making other repairs.

handcuffed them together to a sink pipe."

Some $383 was taken from the store cash register and about $130 in cash was removed from the employees' purses, the investigator noted.

Facial descriptions of the robbers provided by the employees coupled with a tip provided by a Hancock County Sheriff's Department dispatcher led to the identification of the suspects.

The tip was provided by Lillian Roberts of the sheriff's department who refused to provide Hancock County Emergency Relief funds to two men fitting the description of the robbers.

The two requested some of the indigent assistance money at the sheriff's office in Bay St. Louis early last week, but could not produce proper identification, she said Saturday.

Roberts remembered the names the two identified themselves as and a National Crime Information Network report listed an apparent crime record of the duo in addition to photographs of the suspects.

Tartavouille said Collins is described as a white male in his late 30s, six feet tall, about 200 pounds, medium build, black or dark brown hair and blue eyes.

Terry is described as a white male in his late 20s, five-foot five-inches tall, about 130-140 pounds, medium build, red hair and blue eyes.

Joining Tartavouille in an ongoing investigation are Investigator Sandra Henley and Patrolmen Chuck James and Terry Tartavouille, all of the police department; and Investigator Alvin Laddner of the sheriff's department.

FLASHERS SOUGHT

Police Chief Donald Dorn of Waveland Friday said his department is investigating reports of a white male and a black male exposing themselves to women at the shopping center and beachfront area.

Police are attempting to nab the flashers in the act. The two are apparently engaging in the deviant behavior independently.

PROBATION REVOKED

Tartavouille Friday confirmed that probation for Neal W. Hampton Jr., 19, of Bay St. Louis was revoked recently by Circuit Court Judge Rubie Griffin.

The investigator said Hampton will now serve a seven-year prison sentence because of his alleged participation in a Waveland burglary.

SHOPLIFTING

Gary Dorsey, 24, of P.O. Box 1284, Bay St. Louis, was recently charged with shoplifting by the manager of Otasco in Our Shopping Center in Waveland, Dorn reported.

The chief said Dorsey allegedly walked out of the store with a combination radio and cassette player valued at about $160.

Patrolman Chuck James arrested Dorsey who was released from County Jail after paying $150 bond.

The Bay man is scheduled for a hearing in City Court.

Apparent prank results in Hwy. 607 fatality

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

An apparent prank resulted in a Picaune man's death on a Hancock County highway Thursday night.

County Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson Friday reported Tommy Glenn Frierson, 25, of 619 Cayten St. was killed on Hwy. 607 near the Santa Rosa area at about 11:45 p.m.

"Frierson and another subject were playing chicken on the highway—standing on the road, trying to see who could get the closest to a moving vehicle," the sheriff explained.

Peterson said an investigation by Cpt. Paul Bernard and Deputy Danny Savoy, both of the department, and Charles Smith of the State Highway Patrol revealed Frierson was struck by a pickup truck heading north driven by Brian K. Carter of Route 4, Box 29, Picaune.

Coroner Carl Banderet Friday said he pronounced Frierson dead at the scene. He said the Picaune man apparently died of extensive internal injuries.

Tuesday will be a very important day for residents of District Three in Hancock County with a run off election slated for the office of Justice Court judge.

We know there was a big turnout on June 1 in District Three for a field of ten candidates for judge, but since it has been narrowed down to two, we hope folks will see the importance of the election and cast their ballot on Tuesday.

We will have a lady as judge in Hancock County, and feel the qualified electors of District Three all should decide which person should be elected instead of only a hand full.

Over the years we have heard many gripes about office holders in our county, and it is amazing at times how many of the critics never take the time to vote.

We hope you will muster all your friends to make sure they vote Tuesday in District Three for Justice Court judge.

In baseball games with very very few exceptions there is always a winner.

We walked over to McDonald's Field the other evening to watch some minor league play.

The smiles on the faces of the victors in one game were just hard to describe, as it was their first victory of the season.

You would have thought they had won the World Series, and yet it was the first victory for them probably in their life in sports as they are only getting started in baseball.

Now this brings up something I have noted this year at the McDonald Field, far too few parents are interested enough to come out and see their children play.

We can remember not too many years ago when the stands would be full of parents, grandparents, brothers and sisters of players.

We urge everyone not only at the Bay St. Louis Little League, but Waveland, and in the county to get out to the ball fields and see our boys and girls play. They need our support.

As the old expression goes, The Mississippi Sound looked like Canal Street since Wednesday's noon opening of the shrimping season.

Just about any street one drove down on Wednesday there was a shrimping boat heading to the water.

We have heard some good reports of catches, some fair and others poor, so we guess only time will tell what type of shrimping season 1982 will offer.

One thing really worries us, and that is the reports of so few crabs being caught in the trawls. When a shrimping trawl is pulled for several hours and only comes up with one or two crabs in it, they are rather scarce.

Reset body clock on overseas trips

Winter brings vacation time in exotic climes for many people. But for travelers flying overseas over more than four time zones, the first vacation experience could be the debilitating feeling called "jet lag."

The problem is due to disturbing the body's daily rhythms with drastic time changes or longer than normal waking pleted at least 48 hours prior to takeoff to allow a period of relaxation, free from pressure.

If possible, the traveler should schedule a day flight, with a morning departure if possible, remaining close to his home schedule for eating and sleeping, thus arriving at or around his usual bedtime.

During a day flight, with a morning departure, the traveler should avoid sleeping. On a night flight, though, a brief in-flight nap is advised.

After the flight, the traveler should take carefully planned sleep and rest during the first 24 hours. An eastbound day flight from the United States to Europe should be followed by a good night's sleep before sightseeing. An east-bound night flight calls for a morning nap, a leisurely afternoon, and an early bedtime.

Westbound, however, the traveler literally races the sun across the sky and arrives at his destination with local time much the same as the time of departure. The many hours of elapsed time make a long day. Going to bed early and sleeping late are essential.

Science News Service

hours. According to the American Medical Association, though, a traveler can take precautions to minimize jet lag fatigue.

For two or three weeks before the flight, a traveler should gradually improve his general fitness with a walking program, up to three miles daily.

Trip preparations should be com-

Washington Report

By Congressman Trent Lott

5th District, Mississippi

PENTAGON AT WAR WITH WASTE

Not long ago, the House Republican Leadership went down to the White House to meet with President Reagan; Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Deputy Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci.

Our concern was that the Pentagon was not doing enough to cut waste and fraud from the programs managed by the Department of Defense. Even if they were doing something about it, the message was not getting out.

If we are to get the federal budget under control, every agency and department of the government must share in the effort to control costs. That includes the Department of Defense.

Just a few days ago, I received a letter from Mr. Carlucci which I thought was very responsive to the concerns expressed during that Leadership meeting. It seems that the Pentagon is involved in a virtual war on waste which is only beginning to get the attention it deserves.

The cost-cutting program has been highlighted by the creation of a new, high-level position for review and oversight, a new criminal investigation service, invigilation of the telephone "hotline" for reporting wasteful activities and new audit procedures.

The program seems to be working. During the last six months of 1981, for example, internal auditors examined a variety of programs and came up with recommendations that could save about $1.2 billion. In addition, auditors questioned another $12 billion in costs and contracting officers disallowed about $3.5 billion in proposed costs.

"By establishing audit resolution and follow-up systems for defense contract audits...we have tightened our control over contract costs," Mr. Carlucci said in Congressional testimony.

The Pentagon is projecting savings of $2.4 billion in the acquisition category in fiscal year 1983, and savings through 1987 of $13.8 billion.

Costs of internal operations have been reduced by $1 billion for 1983 and by $6.9 billion through 1987. Savings in the area of compensation will total $4 billion for 1983 and $30.8 billion through 1987. Other savings are being made in travel and use of consulting services.

These savings represent a total of $7.4 billion for 1983 and $51.5 billion through fiscal year 1987. I agree with Mr. Carlucci that these figures demonstrate a singleness of purpose in the area of efficient management.

Secretary Weinberger has also set up a special council to find ways of improving Defense Department management and assuring that problems are solved.

With the attention now being placed on re-building our military forces, I am pleased to see that the Defense Department is attending to the problem of waste and fraud with a sense of urgency. It's in keeping with the desire of the American people to get the best value for each dollar spent.

BE A GOOD CITIZEN—

Litter is no little problem. In fact, it is a national problem. It is estimated that each year people throw 16,000 pieces of trash on each mile of primary highway in the United States. This makes 425,000 miles of litter covered roads. It also figures 6,800,000 pieces of trash each year. Please help reduce the litter problem in our communities. Use a litter bag in your car.

PEOPLE'S CHOICE

KEEPING JOBS AT HOME

The month of April produced an encouraging sign that the U.S. trade deficit may be on a declining trend—and that is good news for America's producers.

According to Department of Commerce figures, the U.S. merchandise trade deficit was $2.7 million, the lowest monthly deficit since December 1975.

This lower, one-month deficit was attributed to a number of factors. They included a strong dollar abroad and a reduction in petroleum imports.

This is good news especially for the nation's exporters, including the growing number of Mississippi companies which reach foreign markets in addition to the fact that stronger exports help keep U.S. dollars at home. Our state's exporting companies also provide many jobs for our residents and help the local economy.

The Mississippi Economic Council supports laws and regulations at the federal level which help make U.S.-produced products more competitive with those produced abroad.

And at the state level, the MEC supports a continuing program to help Mississippi businesses reach foreign markets with their products. Such activities are good for our nation and good for our state.

Small-business Angle

DISINFLATION: NEW PROBLEM FOR SMALL BUSINESS

It has been a long time since we heard the word "disinflation." Inflation has been the number one concern of most people for many years. But in the first quarter of 1982, small business reported disinflation.

In the quarterly economic survey conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB), the percent of firms reporting price decreases from January through March rose five points.

The Index of Reported Price Decreases rose more than 33 percent. According to economists, this means 5.3 percent annual deflation rate across the entire small business community.

Wholesalers, manufacturers, and retailers were the leaders in lowering prices because of declining sales and the high cost of financing their inventories.

Those responding to the NFIB survey were ambivalent about the future of the economy. The data showed no evidence the economy will slump further, but neither were their any encouraging signs of an upturn.

One analyst said the tenor of the survey results strongly resembled those of the late 70s.

"Then, it was the recession that was just around the corner," he said. "Now it's recovery that is just around the corner, but there is still no evidence or recovery, at least among small business."

How will disinflation affect the small-business community? Professor

William Dunkelberg of Purdue University says, "If you are a debtor—and many small firms (and consumers) are debtors these days—you will find yourself repaying loans with dollars that are worth more than the dollars borrowed."

"That is a complete reversal of the situation over the last ten years, during which time lenders were repaid with dollars that were worth less and less. The result is that small firms will find the repayment burden growing more difficult as prices remain stable or decline, and that will make it much more difficult for those firms to get back on their feet financially. They will have to earn more than one dollar to repay a dollar in real terms."

This news comes at a time when the effects of slow sales and high interest rates have resulted in the greatest number of business failures since the Great Depression. And with those businesses go thousands of jobs.

The problem will not be solved until confidence is restored among those who put up the money for business to operate and expand. The key is some sign from Washington that Congress is ready to act responsibly to reduce the deficit—and not by huge tax increases.

What are the chances of that happening soon? If the performance of the past two months is any indication, the situation shows little hope of early improvement.

(Wilson S. Johnson is president of the National Federation of Independent Business, representing more than half a million small-business men and women.)

NEWS FROM THE GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

ENERGY ASSISTANCE

Eligible low-income, elderly and handicapped persons again will receive monetary assistance to help offset summer cooling costs, according to the Governor's Office of Energy Assistance (GOEA).

This summer cooling component of the Low Income Energy Assistance Program (LIEAP) will begin on July 1, and families certified eligible will receive one-time payments of $100 to $200, which can legally be cashed only through the energy vendors declared on their applications.

Last year, the minimum payment was $25. This was increased to $100 because no payments will be made this year to persons living in subsidized housing.

"Funds for the cooling program will provide assistance to approximately 10,000 eligible Mississippians who have, at least one member who is 60 or older or a member who is on physical condition aggravated by heat," said Carl Cooper, GOEA director. "Eligibility condition must be medically certified and documented."

All applicants must show family income and assets. The family must provide proof of income for the entire household for at least the prior month. Proof of energy responsibility also must be documented.

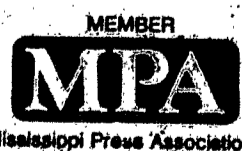

A single person household, for example, could have no more than $514 income to qualify. A family of four could have no more than $1,028.

Applicants who are approved will receive checks in the name of the vendor and the applicant. The program will be administered from July 1 through Aug. 19 by local community action agencies and other community-based organizations.

Cooking up a storm

By Katy McGuire Caire

When summer comes, I think I could live happily as a vegetarian. With all those luscious tomatoes, peppers, squash, eggplant, okra and so on and so on in infinite variety—and, oh how I bless those brave souls who were the first, so long ago, to venture a bite of the allegedly poisonous "love apple" as the tomato was first called.

Juicy, vine-ripened tomatoes are surely among nature's greatest gifts, to mankind, not to be spoken of in the same breath with mass-marketed tasteless substitutes.

As I write this, I am looking at a veritable portrait composition of bounty on my kitchen counter—but how could an artist, however good, capture the fragrance of it all? That's part of the enjoyment, as when you walk out into the garden patch, pluck a ripe tomato, and right there in the summer sunshine, eat the tomato out of hand, perhaps along with a grinding of pepper from the mill you have along, perhaps with a dash of basil, or a sprig of parsley snatched from the garden, along with a stalk of green onion, if you've that growing, too.

Well, as a self-confessed brown thumb gardener, I must admit that none of the above is going on in my back yard, but thanks to our good-gardener friends and their generosity, we too, are feasting on summer's bounty.

I stopped the other day to see Mary and Charlie Breath, and came home laden with tomatoes, peppers, zucchini, squash, etc., from Mary's garden, and that of June Coffey, the Breath's daughter. And as Mary was pointing out which were her home-grown, and which June's, ever-irrepressible Charlie quipped, "Remember, Katy, when you're eating them, Mary's are the best."

As soon as I reached home, I fixed a Tomato Salad Française—no lettuce, just those luscious tomatoes sliced, lavishly sprinkled with basil, splashed with olive oil and just the merest dinkle or red wine vinegar (a dinkle is our term for less than a sprinkle).

Then I scooped a few out, for filling with tuna salad, saving the "scoop-out," of course, for a fresh-tomato omelette.

And, then I made a batch of what we call tomato relish.

And then I started on the other vegetables, for when you can get them that fresh, it's foolish to let them sit around. (More of that next column, space runs out). But, here's

TOMATO RELISH
5 or 6 medium or large garden tomatoes, chopped coarsely

4 green onions, chopped

2 toes garlic, finely chopped

1/2 cup vinegar

1/4 cup oil

Dash (1/2 tsp.) pepper, fresh ground if possible

Salt (optional)

Generous dash of basil

Combine all the ingredients and chill for several hours. It's excellent "as is" with toasted slices of narrow "Poor Boy"

French bread, or melba toast. And it's quite good with sliced ham or chicken or as a

"topper" for broiled or fried fish fillets. It's quite versatile.

Realtors official says:

Congress playing with dream of homeownership

"Congress is playing politics with the American dream of homeownership, a good job and an improving standard of living, by violating its own law," said J. T. Moore, president of the Mississippi Association of Realtors at a recent news conference.

"The Congress failed to adopt a 1983 budget resolution by May 15, 1982," Moore said, "and according to the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, both houses of Congress are required to complete action on the First Concurrent Budget Resolution on or before May 15."

He noted that when the Congress gets around to obeying the law, the budget deficit must be reduced from the $182 billion estimated for 1983 to less than $100 billion.

"Otherwise, the higher record deficit would be financed by taking the savings of every man, woman and child and from business," Moore noted.

By taking so much of savings to finance the deficit, the government deprives everyone who needs and uses credit for the purchase of a home, a car, appliances, for education and training, or for more production and safer work places.

"No wonder real interest rates are at record levels and likely to remain high until the deficit is reduced next year and each year thereafter until a federal balanced budget is achieved," Moore said.

If the 1983 deficit were reduced below $100 billion, the state of Mississippi could expect 3 to 4 percentage points lower interest rates during 1983, which would result in 4,800 more homes built, and 12,500 additional households obtaining the existing home of their choice.

The improvement in general economic conditions could create 6,600 new jobs and reduce unemployment, and increase average household incomes by $500.

Mississippi realtors have contacted all Mississippi congressmen and Senators Stennis and Cochran asking them to do their part to reduce the federal deficit and to encourage their counterparts in Congress to support cutting the deficit to at least $100 billion.

Moore said that realtors are asking that all citizens demand that Congress end this paralysis in the federal government.

The Mississippi Association of Realtors is a statewide trade-professional association representing 27 local realtor boards with more than 2,550 members. It is affiliated with the National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest professional association.

Pearlington burglary suspects arrested

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Two Sildell men suspected of participating in two Pearllington burglaries are being held in a Louisiana jail.

Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson of Hancock County Friday reported Noah A. Russell, 27; Robert D. Burkhalter, 32; and a boy were all apprehended recently in a joint Louisiana-Mississippi law enforcement anti-fencing operation.

The suspects are in the St. Tammany Parish Jail in Covington, the sheriff said.

Peterson explained the local department has been working with the Covington Police Department, St. Tammany Parish Sheriff's Department and the Louisiana Highway Patrol in the operation in which stolen merchandise is purchased by undercover police.

The sheriff said undercover personnel purchased items which were stolen the night of May 7 from Woods Grocery on Hwy. 604 and the evening of April 6 from the Shawn Viguerie residence on Gin Road.

He said a .38 caliber revolver and a microwave oven stolen from the grocery have been recovered.

Peterson reported several thousand dollars of items were stolen from the home when its residents were not home and grocery after it closed for the day.

"The coordinated operation is still being conducted. We hope to recover more items and make additional arrests," he stated.

Items taken from the store also include 118 cartons of cigarettes, pocketknives, various cold cuts, $300 cash, fishing rods and reels, a radio, socks and various other merchandise, the sheriff said.

Stolen from the residence Peterson listed an outboard motor, .22 caliber pistol and holster, three rifles, bullets, knives, a 19-inch color television set, binoculars, a radio, a BB gun and bottles of liquor.

Heading the local investigation are investigators Alvin Ladner and Delbert Seay with the assistance of Deputies Ronnie Cuetas and Glen Jackson, all of the sheriff's department.

RAPE CHARGE

A Waveland man is in County Jail in Bay St. Louis charged with statutory rape.

Peterson said Richard Dale Watts, 19, of 631-15 Old Spanish Trail at Aloha Traller Park is being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Watts was booked at 9:40 p.m. Wednesday.

The sheriff said Watts allegedly had sexual intercourse about two weeks ago with a 15-year-old female in a wooded area near the trailer park.

Peterson explained the girl consented to the act, but it is against the law for an adult to have sexual intercourse with a juvenile.

The girl's parents filed the charges and the suspect admitted to the incident, the sheriff said.

Ladner is in charge of the case, Peterson added.

YOUTH FACING TRIAL

A 16-year-old boy will stand trial in Circuit Court in July for burglary and grand larceny charges.

Peterson said the County Youth Court recently determined Robert J. Mitchell, 16, of Bay St. Louis will be tried as an adult on the charges stemming from a recent burglary at the Eatery in that city.

Money Talk By Norine Barnes

Ask most people how much they spend annually, and they will answer with the yearly salary of the breadwinner. This is a gross figure and can be misleading. What you need to know is the net figure—what is left after Federal and State withholding, hospitalization, insurance, social security, etc. Once you have determined your net income, it is time to set up a spending plan (budget).

If you are new at budgeting, you will first need to find out where your money goes. The best way to do this is to keep a record of everything that you spend for a period of at least three months. Then use this record to decide whether to continue your present spending pattern or make changes.

A study of your records may point out overspending and poor buying habits.

Resolve to cut out shopping sprees, impulse buying, bargains, (which are not bargains if you don't need them) and overuse of credit.

Comparison shop. Have you ever felt cheated after buying an expensive item and later finding that another store is selling the same item at a lower price? You need to be aware of dollar stretching possibilities in different kinds of stores. There are stores that can save you a great deal, especially on big items—so shop around for the best deal.

Comparison shopping takes time but it may save you money.

A FAMILY'S BEST FRIEND

What's the most practical possession a family can own? No, it's not the family station wagon—it's the family pet.

Or so says Dr. Boris Levinson, psychologist and professor emeritus at Yeshiva University in New York City. His research reveals that dogs and cats act as effective family stabilizers and mediators as well as outlets for a child's expression and a focal point for the family's affection.

"Pets can fulfill family members' individual needs as: an energetic playmate for children, an exercise partner for mothers, a relaxing friend for fathers and a constant, companion for grandparents."

"The fact is," says Dr. Michael Fox, noted veterinarian and author, "contact with healthy animals on a regular basis gives pleasure and a proven psychological boost to everyone."

Artist's library display 'interprets Creator's work'

By JOE PILET
Three fresh and exquisitely wrought works of local artist Nadine Stamm are on display on easels at the entrance foyer of the City-County Public Library in Bay St. Louis.

They were placed there by invitation extended by Friends of the Library and may be viewed during regular library hours through the first week of July.

Although Nadine Stamm's work has long been recognized for its individuality and excellence, and she has an impressive number of prizes, trophies, and patrons to prove the accuracy of this statement, Nadine says her talents are God-given and her mission is to glorify the Creator through an interpretation of His works.

A student of the Chicago Institute of Fine Arts, Nadine is the wife of Richard Stamm and her studio is adjacent to their North Beach Boulevard home.

"My husband gives me encouragement and valued opinions," Nadine said, and added that he also designs and constructs the frames that enhance and compliment her works.

On any given morning Nadine may be seen sketching, painting, studying, photographing — all wonderful things in nature capture her fancy: boats in full sail, sea gulls in flight, fish, crabs, ducks and other water fowl, sea shells and drift wood, olive green moss growing on dead pecan limbs. Truly nothing in nature escapes her practiced eye and educated heart.

This year Springtime on the Gulf Coast captured Nadine's fancy. Using water colors and acrylics as mediums and with sable hair brushes — some so slender they looked like a single hair — she transposed a picture-poem on Japanese Washi Paper, a very old Oriental type paper highly praised by Nadine.

"I buy this paper from an art supply shop in New Orleans," she explained and added "It is a joy to work with. The dark and gold tones add interest and it is especially suited to floral and bird-life paintings."

"Don't you think the bamboo framing gives that added touch?" she questioned.

The three paintings every recently completed depict accurately the sunshine yellow of a bearded iris in full bloom with "buds giving promise of tomorrow's miracle," and in the background a spray of delicate white and orange blossoms so realistic until the secret sounds of spring vibrate through the foliage. Quite naturally, a busy-body bee has found his paradise for sipping nectar.

Other paintings show the familiar dark-leaved ivy, a favored location for nesting robins, also large and delicately tinted azalea blooms and truly irresistible baby sparrows.

Mrs. Stamm has been selected to serve as a docent during one of the fall meetings of Friends of the Library. She plans to introduce art and artists from among the many talented people who make their homes in Hancock County.

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

"I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." — John 10:10

By Shanon Murphy
MINISTER, BAY ST. LOUIS CHURCH OF CHRIST

Being a gospel preacher, few things interest me more than a delightful story that illustrates a point or drives home a lesson. Such is the case with the following anecdote entitled "The Greater Fool."

A potentate of ancient Asia presented his court jester with a beautifully wrought wand, and said: "Keep this until you find a greater fool than yourself."

The jester good-naturedly accepted the emblem of magic and flourished it on special occasions.

Some years later the ruler was dying and asked to see the jester, of whom he had grown fond.

"I wanted to say good-bye; I am going away on a long journey."

"Where are you going to?"

"I have no idea."

"How long will you be gone?"

"That I can tell you - it is forever. I know nothing more about this journey I am about to take."

"What have you done about providing for your well-being on this great trip?" asked the jester.

"Nothing whatever," replied the king. "There is nothing to be done."

"Since that is the way you feel," said the jester, "take this wand. You are the one to whom I should give it."

Most all of us would chuckle at the thought of a court jester having the last laugh over a king. And yet in doing so we might easily overlook the major thrust of the story.

Ask yourself this question, "What have I done or am I doing to prepare myself for eternity?" The question "What will I do?" is an invalid one as we have no guarantee of what the future holds.

If your answer is that "I am not prepared," or "Someday I will make things right with God," then you are represented by the foolish king in the story.

In Psalm 14: 1 (KJV) the inspired Psalmist declares, "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God."

And yet, perhaps the 'greater fool' is the one who believes in life after death yet replies as the king does, "There is nothing to be done."

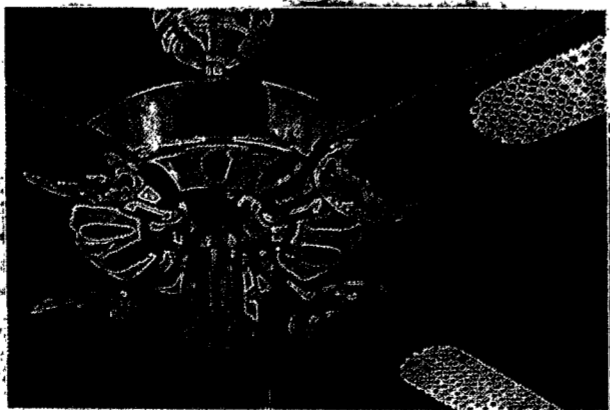

"If that is the way you feel," said the columnist to the unprepared reader, "take this wand. You are the one to whom I should give it."

IN TIME OF NEED—Bill Frisbie, right, needed a hardware item Wednesday afternoon and was able to get special services from Alden Mauffray of Mauffray's Hardware Store. Mauffray usually goes fishing on Wednesday afternoons, but missed last week. The veteran hardware owner said he would advertise in the newspaper if he didn't think it would affect his health, adding he has all the business his wife and he can handle. SCREENING ROOM ONLY

BY DAVID H. JONES

POLTERGEIST
Steven Spielberg makes going to the movies an experience. He is a mastermind of creative, popular moviemaking. Spielberg began his string of classy adventure pictures with the highly successful 'Jaws,' this was followed by 'Close Encounters of the Third Kind' and 'Raiders of the Lost Ark.' Sandwiched in between these blockbusters were two films, the small but entertaining 'Sugarland Express' and the disastrous '1941.' Now Spielberg gives us 'Poltergeist,' a horror thriller for just about everyone. Just as 'The Exorcist' took a regular American family and twisted the life from it, 'Poltergeist' wants to emerge itself in the unknown while taking an innocent child along for the ride. Directed by Tobe Hooper, who also gave us 'The Texas Chainsaw Massacre,' 'Poltergeist' stars Jobeth Williams as Diane and Craig T. Nelson as Steve—the all-American family. During the first few moments of this film you will feel the genuine love that these two people feel for their children. An especially sympathetic character is Carol Anne (Heather O'Rourke), who is the subject of the physical-metaphysical tug-of-war that constitutes the storyline in 'Poltergeist.' Hooper's direction is crisp and always startling. Camera angles are held low to the ground and come gliding through the house like a snake. Spielberg, who wrote the story and assisted on the screenplay, has always used great special effects. 'Poltergeist' is no exception with a multitude of eerie, whirlwind "grab-your-chair" numbers that will have you screaming and gasping for breath. Jobeth Williams, who starred in 'Star 80' and 'Kramer vs. Kramer,' is very good in her role as Diane. Williams is on-camera throughout most of the picture and she handles it admirably, demonstrating fear, love and sometimes comedy with deft precision. An unusual actress named Zelda Rubinstein pulls off some great supporting work as a fast-talking midget psychic named Tangina. Her methods are unorthodox, her dialogue is confusing but when she enters the scene, watch out for the fireworks. 'Poltergeist' was originally rated 'R,' but Spielberg and company asked the ratings board to reconsider that rating. The appeal worked because 'Poltergeist' is now a 'PG' film. And what a 'PG' film it is! Long after seeing it, I was still shaking from the rich images presented in this horrifying thriller. If you love being put on the edge of your seat and then being shocked into a heart-pounding terror excursion, 'Poltergeist' is for you. Best of all 'Poltergeist' doesn't rely on blood, guts and gore to get your attention, it simply appeals to wonder of the unknown in all of us. E.T.: Extra-Terrestrial Spielberg only wrote and produced 'Poltergeist.' He wrote, directed and produced 'E.T.' Last month at the Cannes Film Festival, following the awards banquet, the letters 'E.T.' appeared on the movie screen inside the banquet hall. Before the film had ended the congregation was on its feet, applauding Spielberg's vision and craft. 'Time' magazine devoted ten pages of a recent issue to Spielberg and his 'E.T.' Some people are even saying that it will be the 'Wizard of Oz' of the 80s. Best of all we'll get a chance to see it right here in Bay-Waveland because the Cockett Cinema IV will be one of the theaters across the country showing 'E.T.' Also at the Cockett, Sly Stallone comes to town with his third boxing vehicle, 'Rocky III.' Both movies are 'PG.' 'Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan.'

The Mississippi AAs will be joined at the convention by fellow alcoholics from the neighboring states of Louisiana, Alabama, Florida and Tennessee, according to the convention registration chairman, Dr. J. H. Smith. In addition, the convention program will feature speakers from Massachusetts, Virginia, Alabama, Florida and Mississippi. Among highlights of the three-day event are seafood dinners and dance Saturday evening and an address by Dr. Smith on Monday morning. The first scheduled meeting of the convention will be at 7:00 p.m. Friday at the hotel. A second meeting will be held at 7:00 p.m. Saturday. The convention will include a luncheon and a dinner on Sunday. The convention is being held at the Buena Vista Hotel, which is located on the Gulf of Mexico. The hotel is a large, modern building with a beautiful view of the ocean. The convention is a very important event for the AA community in the South. It provides a chance for members to meet and share their experiences. It also provides a chance for family members to learn more about the disease of alcoholism. The convention is a very successful event and is held every year.

State Weather Projection

Farmers can expect less rainfall than normal during June, according to the National Weather Service.

Temperatures should be above normal in the northern part of the state and near normal in the southern portion, according to the weather service outlook distributed by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Normal rainfall amounts in June are about 3.5 inches at most locations and about five inches near the Gulf Coast, say agrometeorologists at the Mid-South Farm Weather Service in Stoneville.

Northern areas usually receive rain one day in four and coastal areas about two days in five, weather experts say.

Drying rates may be high, and a dry month and higher temperatures could stress young crops and cause some producers to apply more irrigation than planned.

Poultry heat stress also is possible, especially in the northern part of the state.

There's an Answer!

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE AND
RUTH STAFFORD
PEALE

Cries her heart out
Q. How does one overcome a deep hurt? I cannot get over something that happened to me 28 years ago. It eats away at me almost daily. My husband and I weren't able to marry when we were able to because he felt obligated to support his mother. Her own husband was alive but simply wouldn't work.

Am I wrong to feel so hurt? It seems as if his mother got what she wanted and I got pushed back. There are times yet when I really cry my heart out.

A. Yes, you are very wrong to nurse a hurt for 28 years. Indeed it is extremely destructive to do so. Don't put a shadow on your lives any longer because of actions of your husband over a quarter century ago! Wipe your tears and make today a good day.

We are sending you our booklet "How to Have a Good Day Every Day" which can help if you put it into practice. Any reader wishing a free copy may write to us at Box 500, Pawling, N.Y. 12564.

Now she knows
Q. I had a real good husband and we loved each other so much. But sometimes I put our child first. My husband didn't seem to care when our child was sick. Then four years ago my husband died. I know now he loved me more than anyone else ever will. I miss him so much. I know God has forgiven me, but how can I forgive myself?

A. Just say, "I forgive myself." Continue this affirmation daily until your conscious mind accepts it as fact. Then your acceptance of forgiveness can pass into your deeper mind, and you will find peace permanently.
